Scams/Other

Social Security Number Scam

I wrote about this last week, and now I hear it is happening in other jurisdictions. In this type of case, a caller claims to be from the police department tells people that their bank accounts were compromised by either a drug cartel or by other criminal acts. In order for the person to be “protected”, the caller tells the person to withdraw money from the bank and purchase gift cards or bitcoins to deposit the money. The caller’s phone number appears to come back the police department’s phone number on the caller ID#, but it isn’t actually from the Police Department. There are phone applications that can easily proxy a telephone number to make it appear that the call is coming from another number.

We can assure you that we would never call and ask you to take money out of your bank. Please pass along this information to those you know.
