The officers arrived and spoke with a 21-year old resident who took care of her 18-year old brother with Down Syndrome who requires around-the-clock care. The officers determined that the 21-year old sister slapped her brother in the face and used a belt to hit his buttocks and thighs. The dispatcher told the officers that the call was actually a just-occurred armed robbery involving three subjects who had fled the scene in a silver minivan. The reporting party/victim told the officers he was a money collector for the ATM's at the store and that he had just finished replenishing money inside the machine. The 55-year old victim said he was just getting back into his vehicle when a silver minivan blocked the exit to the parking lot, and three subjects got out of their vehicle and approached his vehicle. The victim said he tried to pull the door closed when one of the subjects produced a handgun, pointed it at his head and said, "Give me the money." The victim said another subject, holding a semi-automatic pistol, walked to the front of the car. The other suspect went around to the rear of the victim's car and approached the passenger side area where the victim's wife was seated. The victim said the subject grabbed him by the shirt, pulled him out of the vehicle, moved him to the rear passenger door and once again pointed the gun to his head and demanded money. The victim said the subject who was next to his wife opened the door and hit her on the head. The victim gave the suspects the money, and the suspects fled. Nextdoor.com is a free private social networking website for your neighborhood. This private network ensures that only those who live in your neighborhood can join; users must go through a verification process. Neighbors ask each other for business recommendations; help in locating missing pets; discuss relevant local government issues; or connect for other reasons. It is very easy to sign up. I like the fact that the site verifies users by addresses, and it won't allow people to access to a neighborhood if they don't live there.
