

Braxton R. Lethco

Math Teacher, Coach

As a high school math teacher, debate team and basketball coach, I teach my students, envisioning who they will become in 25 years. I don't want my students to just learn math, I want my students to be able to solve problems for the rest of their lives. I'm constantly thinking about how I can inspire them to make sacrifices now to invest in their future later.

We need the same vision for Daly City. We need city council members who are committed to making sacrifices and investments with a vision of what Daly City will look like in 25 years.

Why are we terminating Engine 95, cutting library hours and programs, and outsourcing our dispatch services when the economy is booming? If we are already compromising our essential services now, what will happen during the next recession?

Investing in the future of Daly City means attracting sustainable businesses, supporting after school programs, and financing public safety. Before building new housing, we must consider how it affects the people who live there, parking, and opportunity cost.

As my wife and I start our family in Daly City, we want to ensure our children will live in a community with vision.

braxtonlethco@gmail.com

www.braxtonlethco.com